BRITAIN NOW CONSIDERING QUESTION OF BOXER DEBTS

Harmsworth "Unable To Anticipate Decision"

PLAN EDUCATION

Committee To Act On Chinese Student Question

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—In the House of Commons today, replying to a question, Lord Winterton, for Mr. Cecil Harmsworth (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs), stated that the attitude to be adopted by the Government towards the resumption of the Boxer Indemnity payments next December was now being considered. He was not able to anticipate at present the course the Government would decide to take.

Replying to Mr. L'Estrange Malone, Lord Winterton said that a committee on the education of Chinese on British lines was meeting at the Foreign Office and was constituted as follows: Sir John Jordan, Sir Samuel Hoare, Sir William Clark, Sir Charles Addis, Mr. F. Anderson of the China Association and representatives of the Foreign Office and the Board of Education.

Dail Eireann Peace Conference Failure

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—The Dail Eireann Peace Committee has failed to find a basis for agreement.

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—The Speaker today submitted to the Dail Eireann the report of the peace committee, which states that eleven sessions have been held. The officers of the rival armies arranged the first meeting with a view to the negotiating of a truce, but practically the whole of the time had been occupied in endeavoring to find a basis of agreement.

"We have failed to agree on a basis," the report concludes.

London, May 10.—Eleven men recently arrested at Birmingham, Coventry, Liverpool, Hanley, Batley and Jarrow were charged at Birmingham today with conspiring to procure arms, ammunition and explosives by purchase or theft to supply the rebel forces in Southern Ireland for the purpose of overthrowing the Free State.

The Government Stipendiary overruled object to the validity of the proceed on the ground that the Public Prosecutor had not received authority from the Irish Provisional Government.

The Prosecutor alleged that the prisoners were controlled by a man named Liam Mellows from Dublin and that correspondence showed that large consignments of arms and ammunition had been despatched to Ireland since November.

London, May 10.—The Dail Eireann Peace Committee failed to reach a basis for unity of the factions in Ireland according to the news dispatch from Dublin.

NOTED SPEAKERS WILL BE HEARD AT TIFFIN TODAY

Wellington Koo And Isaac Marcosson To Address University Club

Mr. Isaac F. Marcosson, writer of world note, who is at present in the East gathering data for Saturday Evening Post articles, and V. K. Wellington Koo, recently returned Chinese Minister to the Court of St. James, will be speakers today at the American University Club tiffin to be held at the Carlton Cafe.

The tiffin will be presided over by Mr. J. B. Powell and will begin promptly at 12:15 p.m.

WELLINGTON KOO TELLS OF GAINS AT ARMS PARLEY

Speaking before the Rotary Club at tiffin yesterday Mr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister to the Court of St. James and one of the chief Chinese delegates at the Washington Conference, told of the gains made at the world arms parley in tones of optimism for China.

The Conference, the Minister said, constituted a most significant omen for the future. It had served to explode the bugaboo of old school diplomacy and brought the people to realisation of how closely knit and interdependent are the nations of the world. It exposed the fallacy of the belief that no nation can gain except at the expense of another.

The Disarmament Conference, he declared, meant much for China, particularly in the manifestation of sincere sympathy, from which it was seen that there was the desire to allow the country to work out its own destiny. A new spirit was evident at the assembly, one which must come to animate all the nations.

The Rev. R. K. Evans, of Peking University, also spoke, on the subject "China, America and Great Britain."

TREATIES RATIFIED

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Peking, May 5.—The Chinese Government, by affixing its seal and the signatures of the President and members of the Cabinet, ratified the Shantung and Nine Power Treaties on April 30. Official announcement of the fact was, however, delayed until May 3.

Graham Taylor, the famous American social worker and head of Chicago Commons, and for many years editorial contributor to the Chicago Daily News has written an exclusive article on his Chinese impressions for THE EVENING STAR.

In it he deals particularly with the work and aims of the National Christian Conference which ended its sessions Wednesday.

NORTHCLIFFE IS FIRM FOR WORD KEPT INVIOLATE

Says British Prestige Depends On Keeping Faith, Not On Cleverness

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—The Empire Press Union, presided over by Lord Burnham, gave a luncheon to Viscount Northcliffe today on his return from his world tour. A distinguished company were present, including the American Ambassador.

Lord Burnham, welcoming Viscount Northcliffe, described him as the first and foremost journalist who believed in the newspaper press as a great force for universal goodwill and welfare.

Lord Northcliffe, responding, dwelt largely on the Canadian cattle embargo which has recently been the subject of much agitation in England. He regarded the embargo as a great slur on the people of Canada and pointed out that Baron Ernle as Minister of Agriculture during the war had promised the removal of the embargo.

Lord Northcliffe insisted on the fulfilment of the pledge. He said that Britain's position in the world depended not so much on cleverness as the fact that the national word of the Englishman was held in high esteem abroad especially in the Dominions.

Lord Northcliffe continued that the Dominions were generally little interested in British politicians but warmhearted in affection and respect for the Crown, while nobody imagined for a single minute that the conservative people of India wanted a republic. They loved signs of authority and the real link which held together the work accomplished in India by scores of generations of Britons was the Crown.

Referring to the work of the Empire Press Union, Lord Northcliffe said that he regarded its position as more important than ever before. He emphasised the need of improving communications especially with the Far East, pointing out that the Governor of Indo-China was in constant communication with the homeland by wireless, while, when he stayed with "the very patient and wise ruler of India, Earl Reading," he found that cable communications had been cut off for three days.

Japanese Envoys To Washington Are Guests At Banquet

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 11.—The American-Japan Society this evening gave a banquet to the delegates to the Washington Conference and the members of the Businessmen's mission to Europe, at which Admiral Kato and Mr. Takuma Dan delivered speeches.

Mr. Charles Beecher Warren, the American Ambassador, also spoke, conveying a message from President Harding to Japan, acknowledging the delegates' sympathetic co-operation and the considerate and accommodating spirit with which they participated in the many difficult questions before the Conference.

National Church Conference At Close Of Sessions Sends A Message To Other Lands

Asks Unity For World Program; Executive Committee Of Council Is Announced And Will Meet Today And Tomorrow

The closing day of the National Christian Conference amounted to a charging of the new National Christian Council with carrying out the great tasks foreseen by the Conference as a whole for the further christianising of China.

A blanket resolution was brought in at the beginning of the morning session authorising the Council to refer to all the organisations concerned the many recommendations which had been presentd to the Conference in the Commission reports. The only specific resolution brought before the Conference as a whole yesterday was one which called upon all Christian forces in China to oppose the cultivation of opium and the traffic in opium with a renewal of the vigor with which this opposition was conducted so successfully several years ago.

The Conference then put upon record its gratitude for the good services rendered by all who had had to do with the plans and program. So long and impressive was the list that one delegate finally rose and moved to add "and all others" in order to bring it to an end.

AS WORLD INFLUENCE

Dr. Cheng Ching-yi spoke of the undoubted influence which the Conference will have in effecting religious unity not only in China but through the whole world and he bespoke for the National Christian Council an attitude of good will on the part of all delegates and friends of Christianity in spite of the inevitable incompleteness of the plans with which the new Council is launched.

The problem of financing the Council was presented by Dr. J. T. Proctor, more in general however, as there has not yet been time for the Committee to work out a budget. His analysis of the financial status of the China Continuation Committee was of interest in this connection. The latter organisation has had a budget of from fifty to sixty thousand dollars annually, over 90 percent of which has come from sources outside of China. The budget of the new Council will undoubtedly be somewhat higher than that of the C.C.C. and there is every expectation that support from China herself will be encouragingly increased in the light of the strong leadership taken by the Chinese in the Conference just closed.

THE COUNCIL COMMITTEE

At the end of the morning session the Chairman of the Business Committee, Dr. Yui, announced the 21 members of the executive committee of the National Christian Council as follows:

Miss Fan Yu-jung.
Cheng Ching-yi.
E. C. Lobenstine.
D. E. Hoste.
Lindel Tsen.
Mrs. F. T. Sung.
L. H. Roots.
Fletcher S. Brockman.
Harold Balme.
Chen Wen-ching.
Z. T. Kaung.
Yuang Shao-chuan.
L. J. Birney.
C. E. Patton.
J. A. O. Gotteberg.
John Y. Lee.
T. C. Chao.
K. T. Chung.
J. T. Proctor.
Margaret King.
David Z. T. Yui.

The remainder of yesterday's sessions were given to impressions of the Conference expressed by representatives of some of the British and American Mission Boards and representatives of various groups of people in China. The group of Western visitors spoke almost without exception of the great promise which lies in this achievement of Christian unity in China for the hope of a suffering and discouraged world.

MESSAGE TO OTHER LANDS

It is significant to note in return how strong an appeal now goes out from the Church in China to the Church of the world for that kind of unity which has been achieved to so remarkable a degree in the National Christian Conference this week. The Conference approved the following statement to be communicated to the Christians of other lands:

"To Christians of other lands:

"An overpowering sense of the joy and strength of fellowship in Christ has come to us who are gathered in a national conference representing more then one hundred and thirty Christian bodies in China. It has been given to us to catch the vision of a wonderful united Chinese Church bound together in the service of the Master in this great land where the laborers are all too few and the harvest so pleneous. Yet we find that now this desire of our hearts—as always the work of our hands—is hindered by the tragedy of division among the Christians of the world. While standing for the principle of indigenous Christianity, we do not seek isolation and separation from the Mother Churches, but we ask that they shall strive for untiy among themselves so that we in China may be able also to unite and bear undivided witness to the mighty works of God.

"Surely, the salvation of the human race calls for nothing less

MIXED COURT EMPHASISES ITS REGISTRY STAND

Assessor Says Bench Must Have Reasons When Chinese Claim Foreign Protection

The question of registration of Chinese in foreign consulates was brought up again in the Mixed Court yesterday, when British Assessor Blackburn reiterated the stand taken by the Court previously in this matter and in a clear statement outlined the attitude which it is proposed to maintain.

The question was raised by a Chinese civil action brought by one Lieu Suh-yoen against Phen Dzong-jui, trading as Dong Yih Kong Hong, on a claim of T. 15,000. Judgment had previously been given in default when the defendant failed to appear and the defendant's lawyer produced a letter from the Portuguese Consul-General yesterday taking exception to the judgment and stating that the Chinese is registered as a Portuguese citizen.

The court's statement was as follows:

"The principle we wish to establish is that any person against whom proceedings are brought in this court cannot merely ignore its summons on the ground that he is registered in a foreign consulate, but must appear and plead to the jurisdiction. When he has appeared and plead, the court will then decide whether he is subject to the jurisdiction of this court or not, and will, for this purpose, pay due regard not only to the Chinese law and the treaties between China and foreign nations but also to the particular circumstances of each case. This court, as a Chinese court cannot admit that the mere fact of birth in a foreign country is sufficient to turn the child of Chinese parents into a foreigner nor, with every respect to the consulates concerned, will we accept the certificates of foreign registration as conclusive against the jurisdiction of the Mixed Court.

TO ASCERTAIN FACTS

"In future, when foreign nationality is claimed by defendant of Chinese origin, we propose to ascertain not only where defendant was born, where he is domiciled, whether he owns land in the interior—which a foreigner may not do—whether in trading he has held himself out as a Chinese or a foreigner and, generally, whether he has asserted his foreign nationality and renounced his Chinese nationality, or has, on the contrary, merely kept his foreign nationality concealed like a trump card to be played only in an emergency. And taking all these facts into consideration we will then decide whether to take jurisdiction or not.

"In the present action the defendant did not appear when summoned and judgment was given by default. We are now shown a letter from the Consul-General of Portugal, who states that the defendant is registered as a Portuguese citizen, having been born in Macao in 1878.

"While assuring Mr. Casanova of our high regard and while disclaiming any intention of showing him any disrespect we say that we cannot regard this as conclusive against the Mixed Court's jurisdiction. Fearing, however, that the non-appearance of the defendant is due to a misapprehension of the court's attitude, we are willing to re-open the case if he appears within three days and either submits to or pleads to the jurisdiction."

Girl Wife Quits Aged Millionaire Husband "For Good," She Says

AFTER three years of apparent happiness as the girl wife of Jonathan Godfrey, seventy-six-year-old millionaire, of Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. Estelle Mudge Godfrey, twenty-one, is planning legal action for separation. "I have left Mr. Godfrey for good," she declares. "It is a case of incompatibility. I do not intend to return to Bridgeport at any time." The aged millionaire does not know why his wife left him, he asserts. He has dispelled the "other man" theory and declares that he still loves her.

Philosophy Of Confucius Too Logical For Chinese

By Elsie McCormick

Everyone who has been in the East more than a month picks up a catch-sentence about Confucianism which is flies away with other Far Eastern pearls of wisdom, such as "You mind the heat a lot more the second summer than you do the first." Whenever the subject is mentioned, he contributes the parrotlike comment, "Confucianism is not a religion." He says it with an air of finality that dismisses the subject and clears the way for a discussion of how to pick winners among Mongolian ponies.

In fact, we used to make the same remark ourselves, although our knowledge of Confucianism at the time was confined to a hazy notion that Confucius once wrote a book of etiquette that had since gone out of date. As the result of giving a little more attention to the subject, we have learned that the question by no means deserves the gesture of finality usually awarded it by amateurs. Though many sinologues do claim that Confucius' system of thought is unadulterated philosophy, an equal number state that he was also the founder of a religion.

The question is a hard one to determine, not only because the line between religion and philosophy is often as fine as the subdivisions of a hairnet, but because Confucius' opinions are so difficult to clutch. The principles of his teachings are scattered among books that he wrote, books that he edited, and remarks made on the hoof and taken down by his tireless disciples. There are numerous instances of self-contradiction and other cases where the meaning is as difficult to distinguish as a black licorice candy in the dark. A person might delve through all the Sage's works and then experience the baffled feeling of having missed the point after all. Taken sentence by sentence, his remarks seem clear enough; it is only when one tries to piece them together in a mosaic that the lack of a central pattern becomes apparent.

HE WAS A DEIST

As nearly as we can make out, Confucius was a deist. He referred frequently to a vague Providence called "T'ien," though never to the more intimate and personal Shang-ti. His God was typified by the wide, serene expanse of heaven, not by the robed and hatted deity that rules the universe from the shrines of Tao. He greatly loved sacrifice and religious ceremonial, yet once, during a serious illness when his disciples suggested praying for him, Confucius rallied himself to ask if there was any precedent for such prayers. After much unrolling of scrolls, one of his disciples said that the Eulogies sanctioned prayer to the spirits of Heaven and Earth. "In that case," said the master, "my prayers began long ago." This is one of Confucius' cryptic remarks which has been subjected to much varied interpretation.

Confucius' simple faith in a divine Providence was complicated somewhat by a belief in many spirits. He was free, however, from the weary bondage to evil souls that keep his countrymen of today busy placing mirrors over their doors, putting unmated earrings in the ears of small boys, twisting streets out of all relation to the shortest distance between two points, and building walls across the entrance to their homes so that the evil spirits will bump their ugly foreheads. Confucius' teaching on the subject was that if a man doesn't play with strange souls, they won't play with him. "Worship the spirits of your ancestors," he said in effect, "but have nothing to do with spirits to which you have not been introduced."

The Sage's conception of the relationship between the living and the dead was far above the ghost-baiting of his less high-minded countrymen. He accorded the spirits a dignity commensurate with the respect that they would demand in life and unlike the average Chinese, he did not go on the assumption that they are feeble-minded. Speaking of a candle-lit service for the dead, he said, "Spirits seem to pass in waves; now over the heads and now at the very sides of the worshippers." Yet at another time, when a disciple asked a question about the proper ceremony for departed

WU TO DELAY CONVOCATION OF NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Will Be Content For Present With Strong Cabinet

IS IN PAOTINGFU

Chihli Leader Says He Has "Satisfied Washington"

BY JOSEF W. HALL
Staff Correspondent the China Press

Paotingfu, May 11.—General Wu Pei-fu arrived in Paotingfu today and proceeded quietly to his headquarters. There was no demonstration of any kind. The Chihli military capital is normal except for the presence of 1,500 wounded soldiers. Traffic on the Peking-Hankow road is not yet restored, but will be shortly.

The most remarkable aspect of the war is the fact that it did not disturb political conditions or institutions, due, it is conceded on all sides, to Wu's policy of non interference. He is the guiding hand in the establishment of what is expected to be a strong cabinet in Peking, with which he will be content for the time being unless there is a popular demand for a national convention.

General Wu jokingly remarked to a group of officers with whom he conversed while on the way here that his "disbandment of the Fengtien troops fulfilled the desires of the Washington Conference for a reduction in China's army."

(Special Wire to THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, May 11—General Wu Pei-fu's reconstruction plan will be contained in a circular telegram now being drafted. The salient points of the message will include the reorganisation of the Cabinet as a preliminary step and the calling of a Conference of National Affairs, for the unification of the country. Following this, General Wu hopes to convene a genuine representative Parliament for the election of a president.

Before the election of the new Chief Executive, however, General Wu will support Hsu Shih-chang in order to facilitate diplomatic intercourse. He asserts that he will retire from political life as soon as the new president is elected.

The circular telegram will be endorsed by the Tuchuns of the Chihli party and is expected to be received favorably by the public.

An understanding has been reached between the Peking Government and General Wu Pei-fu for the disbanding of all the forces that entered Shanhaikwan under the command of Chang Tso-lin. The forces consist of the First Division, under Chang Ching-hui; the eleven Mixed Brigades under the command of Tsai Pung-ping, Cheng Tien-shen, Chang Hsueh-liang, Chu Shou-shu, Chi En-ming, Pao Teh-shan, Li Ching-ling, Kuo Sung-ling, Neu Yung-fu, Chao Fu-tang and Kuo Yin-chow; the 27th Division, under Chang Tso-hsiang; 28th Division, under Chi Ching-chen; one of the Mixed Brigades of the 29th Division; the Kirin Brigade under Chang Chiu-ching; the Heilungkiang Mixed Brigade, under Li Kwei-ling; the first Mixed Brigade from chahar, under Wang Chi-tung, and the 25th Mixed Brigade under Chi Tsan-chiu.

Details which have just been received in Peking on the conditions of the Fengtien Army during the recent clash are to the effect that 4,000 were either killed or wounded, 30,000 were routed and have deserted, 12,000 surrendered and 27,000 were disarmed and repatriated. Over 10,000 are now stationed in the vicinity of Lwanchow, attempting to make a stand.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, May 10.—The dismissal of Chang Tso-lin was published today. At this juncture, taking as their opportunity of the abolition of the Inspector Generalship of the Three Eastern Provinces, argument is now gaining strength among a section of military men as well as in Government circles that all other Inspector Generals should likewise be dismissed.

The presidential mandate announced that Chang Tso-lin has been deprived of his posts of Inspector General, of Tuchun and Civil Governor of Fengtien province, and ordered that Chang should await the decision of a trial court. The Inspector Generalship of the Three Eastern Provinces is declared abolished.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 11.—According to responsible telegrams from Mukden, Generals Chang Tso-lin and Sun Lieh-chun reached Mukden on Sunday and are now returning to the front, followed by supplies, reinforcements and munitions. They apparently intend to make a fresh stand near the Great Wall.

The opinion is voiced in Peking that the dismissal mandate has convinced General Chang Tso-lin and his friends in Peking that he will not be able to secure compassionate treatment and that he might as well fight on. It also explains the belated outbreak in Honan and the Japanese reports of sudden activity in Canton.

Other reports show, however, that Kwangtung is in a very parlous condition and is riven with dissentions and that the expedition is not receiving the support necessary for its success, while Kwangsi has practically regained its independence. Moreover, the Honan movement is obviously hopeless and General Chang Tso-lin's forces have entirely lost their elan.

Peking, May 11.—According to reports from Chihli sources the Chinese cruisers, Hai Chou, Yung Hai and Hsin Yu, anchored at Chinwangtao on May 8, and afterwards co-operated with the forces commanded by the Defence Commissioner at Shanhaikuan, Colonel Yin Peng-chao, placing near the railway a mixed force which tore up several rails and warned by gunfire the Fengtien troop trains from the south, which were allowed to proceed with disarmed troops after the removal of all guns, arms and munitions. The lines are being temporarily replaced.

According to Chinese reports General Wang Chen-ping is in command of the Chihli frontal headquarters.

General Wu Pei-fu passed through Peking on his way to Paotingfu last night.

General Lu Yung-hsiang has circulated a telegram to the President pointing out that he advised both sides not to fight. He emphasises that the hostilities have been very short and contends that a magnificent opportunity is offered for reunification, for which he hopes that President Hsu will exercise his high authority.

Chinese telegrams say that General Chao Chieh was shot on May 8, General Chao Ti escaped to Yinshang, Anhui, on May 9 and General Feng Yu-hsiang reached Kaifeng on May 10.

Peking, May 11.—The Cabinet met this afternoon and resolved to resign en bloc, after which a mandate was issued announcing the expected appointment of General Wang Shih-cheng as Premier.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, May 11.—It is now in the power of the people of China to secure representative government in fact as well as in name but the request must come from the people. Such was the gist of a statement made by Wu Pei-fu before leaving for Paotingfu from which city, he asserts, he can assist the people just as well as from this vantage spot near the capital.

The whole matter of reorganising the government is put squarely up to the people of China and the only proviso made by General Wu is that they must act quickly if a popular assembly is to be brought about. This is the tenor of a general invitation to all the provinces to act and act at once.

Responses are expected immediately especially since Anhui organisations already are in session at Anking and are preparing to issue their acceptance on the part of the province to Wu's invitation. Intimations are made that Chen Chiung-ming, the war leader of the Kwangtung forces, is preparing to express himself. It is expected that he will pledge his adherence to the cause of unity. Word has not yet been received from Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

Wu Pei-fu has expressed himself as approving the premiership of General Wang Shih-chen. The President has been requested to issue a mandate deposing Chang Tso-lin and ordering him to stand trial for the destruction and damage done by the war.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, May 10.—It is learnt on good authority that Tsao Kun yesterday wired to the Central Government, requesting that Ministers of Finance, Communications, War, and Interior, should by all means be appointed from among the members belonging to the Chihli faction.

(Evening News Agency)

Tientsin, May 10.—General Wu Pei-fu has brought with him a large amount of notes of the Hupeh Bank and has made the Board of Police here issue a notification, prohibiting the notes of the Bank of the Three Eastern Provinces from getting circulated and announcing that the notes of the Hupeh Bank shall be passed at their face value.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 10.—Ten mandates issued this morning and this afternoon dismiss General Chang Tso-lin and refer his case to the authorities for punishment, abolish the Super-Tuchunship of Manchuria and make the following appointments:

General Wu Chun-sheng, Tuchun of Kirin; General Feng-Tih-lin, Acting Tuchun of Heilungkiang; Mr. Yuan Chih-kai, Acting Civil Governor of Fengtien; Mr. Shih Chi-chang, Acting Civil Governor of Heilungkiang; General Feng Yu-hsiang, Tuchun of Honan, vice General Chao Ti, who is removed from office and referred to the authorities for examination; and Mr. Lu Chen-hua, the Civil Governor of Shensi, concurrently Tuchun of Shensi.

The Post of High Commissioner of Mongolia formerly held by General Chang Tso-lin is abolished and the defense of Mongolia placed under the direct control of the Cabinet.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 10.—Fourteen crowded Fengtien troop trains passed Chinwangtao today going North and one Chihli troop train has reached Tongshan.

A mandate issued last night dismissed General Chao Chieh. General Chang Tso-lin's dismissal is expected this afternoon.

It is improbable that this will cause trouble in Manchuria, most of the military leaders there having assured the Government of their good intentions.

Generals Chang Hsi-luan and Pao Kwei-ching have refused Manchurian posts, the former probably because General Wu Pei-fu recommends the complete abolition of inspector-generalships, including his own and that of General Tsao Kun.

The appointment of General Sun Lieh-chen as Tuchun of Fengtien has again been semi-officially forecasted.

General Pao Kwei-ching resigned last night, but the President refused to accept and granted him five days' leave. General Tsao Jui has also been given sick-leave of twenty days. General Yang I-teh meanwhile will be Acting Civil Governor.

The Government recently discussed the question of punishing General Chao Ti, but decided to postpone pending fuller reports from General Feng Yu-hsiang.

General Chin Yung-ao and Wang Wei-wei have partially disarmed General Chao Chieh's 1st Honan Division at Chungmowhsien.

Major-General Li Shou-chin, the Inspector of Metropolitan Police, who was arrested on Sunday on a charge of acting as a Fengtien spy, remains in custody. Colonel Teng Yi-an, who was arrested on the same day, has since been released on bail.

Mr. Kao Ling-wei assumed the post of Acting Minister of Communications yesterday.

Chang Tso-lin Aimed At Re-establishment Of Monarchy, Belief

(China Mei Service)

Peking, May 8.—The teahouses of the Capital, where it is said all the really important ...gs of China are hatched and where they are discussed after they are over, are buzzing with the talk of what was the real purpose of Chang Tso-lin in attempting to come to Peking at the present time, and what he would have done if he had won.

No less than the restoration of the monarchy itself is the conclusion that is going the rounds at the moment. Chang Tso-lin's ambitions are being compared to those of Yuan Shih-k'ai, and the similarity of the two is being pointed out in that they both had sons who were the apples of their eye. Each it said had the idea of getting the line of succession established through their sons.

No one of his main supporters, not even Mr. Yeh Kung-chow and Mr. Liang Shih-yi, knew about the designs that were complete in every way, it is said. Chang Tso-lin took with him $28,000,000 from the Three Eastern Provinces, for the campaign which seems, according to the teahouses gossip, to have consisted to bribing anyone and everyone whom he need to support him.

There is also much talk of the attempt to kill General Wu Pei-fu, reports of which brought such excitement to the capital. Wu Pei-fu, says the talk, was supposed to have been in a certain corner of a certain village, when word was brought to Chang Tso-lin of the fact.

Chang Hsueh-liang was immediately ordered to rush in and capture the head of the reprobate general who stood in the way of Chang's plan. 15,000 cavalry and 10,000 soldiers were led to the spot, but at the "certain corner" of the tea-house talk, were only machine guns which made things very difficult for all concerned. Chang Hueh-liang got back with but half of his original troops, and he himself, being ashamed to meet his father, "went back to Tientsin to stay with sing-song girls."

Notes On The Situation

The consensus of opinion seems to favor the organisation of a Wang Shih-chen Cabinet. This will be announced probably after the Cabinet meeting tomorrow. Wang's terms are disarmament and no interference from militarists.

President Hsu Shih-chang has advised Chang Tso-lin to evacuate Lwanchow at once.

Lack of reliable information spelled doom for Chao Chieh, brother of Chao Ti, who has been shot by Feng Yu-hsiang. Chao moved his troops against the Chihli army because he had taken the report of the death of Wu Pei-fu seriously. This report was circulated by the Chiaotung clique and Chao thought it has his golden opportunity to strike. Tuchun Chang Wen-sung of Anhui also mobilised his troops for action when the report was received. But he rescinded his order when the report was found to be baseless.

The Chihli Guild in Tientsin has enumerated ten grave crimes alleged to have been committed by Tsao Jui, the Civil Governor. Mr. Chang Shao-chen, the ardent advocate of the Lushan Conference, will be appointed to this office, it is stated.

General Wu Pei-fu has ordered the arrest of Chang Ching-yao, formerly Tuchun of Hunan, who is reported to have transported many bandits to create trouble in Shantung during the retrocession period.

General Wu Pei-fu has ordered the arrest of Pien Shou-chin, the Chihli politician who invited the entry of the Mukden forces into Shanhaikwan.

When Yang Yi-teh, the Acting Civil Governor of Chihli, presented Wu's victorious army with foodstuffs. Wu reminded Yang he had done this before to the Fengtien Army when it passed through Tientsin and remarked that Yang should be a very successful mandarin on account of his adaptibility. Yang's embarrassment was obvious, according to reports.

Both Wu Chin-shen and Su Li-chen, Chang Tso-lin's aides, have arrived in Lwanchow to assist Chang Tso-lin in his flight to Mukden.

C. S. Liu, chief of the railway section of the Ministry of Communications has been placed under arrest by Peking gendarmes for alleged pro-Fengtien inclinations. He is said to have supplied all the railway coaches to Chang Tso-lin for his expedition.

A Presidential Mandate has been issued appointing General Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian Commander, Tuchun of Honan, to succeed Chao Ti dismissed. Liu Cheng-hua is named Tuchun of Shensi.

A Hankow telegram carried by the Dah Tong News Bureau confirms the report of the death of Chao Chieh and the flight of his brother Chao Ti. General Feng Yu-hsiang has entered Kaifeng.

President Hsu has accepted the suggestion of General Wu Pei-fu to change the Tuchun of Anhui and to disarm the new An Wu Army under the present Tuchun, Chang Wen-sung.

The president has also accepted the resignation of Mr. Chang Ming-chen, secretary of the Cabinet, instructing him to wind up his affairs before leaving. The report that Chang has been under surveillance is said to be false.

Chang Tso-lin's Son Died On Train, Report

(China Press Correspondence)

Changlihsien, May 6.—Chang Tso-lin spent yesterday at Lanhsien, 25 miles west of here, and passed through Changli during the night. He is doubtless now safely beyond the Wall. His son passed here yesterday afternoon, but died on the train beyond Shanhaikuan. This probably hurried Chang's departure.

All trains are cancelled, and military specials are running through often without the required "staff" or "key" giving them the right of way, and with no train guards on board. The track is simply cleared for them and they go through at their own risk. So far 8 troop trains have passed this point enroute for Mukden, and about 15 trains are holding up between T'ang Shan and Lanhsien, probably to hold the road and cover the retreat. A train carrying two airplanes and two automobiles preceded Chang Tso-lin's train last night, so he is prepared for any emergency.

The Chinese gunboats have left Chinwangtao and proceeded beyond Shanhaikuan, where it is believed they will attempt to cut the railroad. The U. S. cruiser Albany stationed at Chinwangtao, acting on treaty rights, refused to allow them to land troops there, or to interfere with the railroad.

There has been no movement of troop trains for some 18 hours now. The Mukden-Peking Express stood at Changli all day yesterday, and during the night returned to Shanhaikuan. The midnight express went through about 3:00 a.m. but it is not believed it was able to pass Lanhsien. The day express train will start from Shanhaikuan this morning and attempt to get through to Peking.

A total of some 200 trains passed here for the front the past few weeks, so it is feared the congestion will continue for days, even if the Chihli troops do not succeed in breaking the railroad and stopping the retreat.

ROBBED 1,000 YEN

A gang of fifteen Chinese loafers held up and robbed a Japanese of 1,000 yen on Yalu Road last night. No arms were used, the Chinese robbers depending on force of numbers. Police are investigating.

Says Marcosson in "The American"

Isaac F. Marcosson who is visiting Shanghai this week has an article in the current American Magazine on "How Big Men Hit the Nail on the Head." In his description is this paragraph:

"Rhodes's (Cecil Rhodes of African fame) attitude toward money was typical. To him it existed merely as a means to an end. When General Gordon told him that he had refused a roomful of silver for his services in exterminating the Chinese bandits, the great empire-builder looked at him in amazement and said: 'Why didn't you take it? What earthly use is there in having ideas if you haven't the money with which to carry them out?"

A Savings Account at the A. O. B. C. won't guarantee that constructive IDEAS will come to you, but it will assist you in having the MONEY to carry them out when they do come.

National Conference Sends Message To Other Lands

than a world program and is a task which in itself points to the danger and sin of longer perpetuating the spirit of division among the children of a common Lord. We ask therefore that our brethren in every land shall strive for that perfect unity for which Christ prayed when He said, 'that they all may be one as Thou Father art in me and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that Thou hast sent me.'"

SESSIONS CLOSE

The afternoon session closed with an address by Mr. Fletcher S. Brockman, associate secretary of the American Y.M.C.A., which was a plea for a continuance of the spirit of unity which has been so strong a key-note of the entire National Conference.

Most of the out-of-town delegates are leaving the city today although the Committee of one hundred of the new Council will remain for all day sessions today and tomorrow in order that the new organisation may be got well under way.

Many delegates availed themselves, in the last few hours, of the final chance to visit the exhibit of the Christian organisations held at the Ningpo Guild Hall, Thibit Road. This exhibit will be open until the middle of this morning, after which it will be taken down.

Conference Gets Greetings From Islands And Japan

Greetings from Christian forces in Japan and in the Phillipines were given to the Christians of China yesterday at the closing session of the National Christian Conference.

The message from the Japanese was voiced by Japanese delegates who attended the Conference and in it was conveyed an invitation to all of the Conference delegates to attend a National Christian Workers Conference which is to be held in Tokio from May 18 to May 23.

An outline of the activities of the Protestant Christian churches in the Philippines was given in the communication from the Islands. This said in part:

"The 90,000 Protestant Christians of the Philippines send their greetings to their Christian brethren of China, wishing for them the very greatest and best of results from the National Christian Conference.

"Protestant work began in the Philippines early in 1899, and is now represented practically everywhere over the Islands. There are some two hundred and twenty foreign missionaries, two hundred and fifty ordained Filipino pastors, and upwards of one thousand licensed evangelists. Recent encouragements have come both along the lines of evangelism and church development. Many of the churches have now reached self-support and many more are on the way. The honoring and strengthening of the pastoral relationship has been the most effective means toward the securing of these results.

"There are seventy-two young men in the various stages of preparation for the gospel ministry studying in the Union Theological Seminary in Manila."

souls, Confucius withered him with the remark, "Until you are able to serve man, how can you expect to serve their spirits? Until you understand life, how can you possibly understand death?" This reply has often been quoted to prove Confucius a materialist, but our guess is that he was gently knocking the disciple in question, whose service to man perhaps left many unfurnished rooms for improvement.

UNCONCERNED WITH DEAD

Beyond admitting that there are such things as spirits Confucius' imagination and curiosity failed to carry him. He was not concerned with how the dead spend their time. He expressed no opinion as to whether they lived under a hill, as the Taoists declared, or whether they dwelt in the uppermost regions of the sky, as was later asserted by the Buddhists. He created no postmortem joys or tortures to bribe and frighten men into following his precepts, as he left the question of doing good to each man's conscience.

Confucianism had no orders of priesthood and therefore is free from the burden of moth-eaten, gong-striking brethren who preside at the altars of Buddha and Tao. Its belief in a high, serene Providence, its ignoring of evil spirits, its lack of complicated mythology, and its absence of both rewards and threats as motives for doing good make it one of the most advanced religions in the world. The only trouble with it was that it didn't work. As soon as the Buddhist missionaries set foot in China, the population began to flock wholesale to the standard of the lotus-flower. Some of the most terrible religious persecutions in history were directed against the Buddhists by the Confucianists, but the new faith continued to make headway. Buddhist monasteries were razed, the repair of their temples was prohibited, and worshippers slaughtered by indignant Emperors. Yet the more colorful doctrines of Buddhism gained ground until cool at last a sacred bone of the Indian mystic was received in the imperial palace itself.

As a religion, Confucianism proved itself inadequate. Men demand the right of contemplation and ecstacy; they demand gods with a touch of humanity about them; they must know in detail what lies beyond life, for otherwise they suffer like children crying in the dark. They seem to enjoy shuddering over graphic representations of tortures and sighing over saints meditating in the cool petals of a heavenly lotus. Confucianism was too rational, too drab, too lacking in the throb of adoration. As a result, it has become a pale ethical system, while the religion of "the Western barbarian," as an indignant Confucianism called Buddha, absorbs all the sweet-smelling incense.

Will Confucianism someday return as the real religion of China? Or is it too reasonable? Men seem to prefer to make religion a matter of emotion and to keep it in a water-tight compartment of their brains, safe from the iconoclasms of logic. The age when the masses of the people would be capable of finding full religious satisfaction in Confucianism is probably as far in the future as Confucius' own day is in the past.

AGE is no indication of eye condition. Many aged people do not need to wear glasses, whereas many children need them at an early age.

Sometimes children, otherwise bright and intelligent, are backward in school on account of defective eyesight which is entirely unsuspected.

Let us test the eyes of your children. Be sure that you know whether or not their eyes are all right.

PEKING SCORES RUSS-MONGOLIA SECRET TREATY

Soviet Policy Compared To That Of Czar's Regime

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 5.—The following is an unofficial translation of the text of a memorandum presented by the Waichiaopu to the Soviet representative M. Paikess on May 1, protesting against the signature of the recently announced treaty between Russia and Mongolia:

"According to the recent report of General Li Yuan on the subject of the Russo-Mongolian Treaty, we asked you about this matter when you first arrived in Peking and you replied that it was entirely untrue. However, during a recent conversation with you I again put the question to you owing to the recent publication by the papers of the text of the treaty, and you admitted the truth of this report.

"The Soviet Government has repeatedly declared to the Chinese Government: 'That all previous treaties made between the Russian Government and China shall be null and void: that the Soviet Government renounces all encroachments of Chinese territory and all concessions within China and that the Soviet Government will unconditionally and forever return what has been forcibly seized from China by the former Imperial Russian Government and the Bourgeoise.'

"Now the Soviet Government has suddenly gone back on its own word and secretly and without any right concluded a treaty with Mongolia. Such action on the part of the Soviet Government is similar to the policy the former Imperial Russian Government assumed toward China.

"It must be observed that Mongolia is a part of Chinese territory and as such has long been recognised by all countries. In secretly concluding a treaty with Mongolia the Soviet Government has not only broken faith with its previous declarations but also violates all principles of justice.

"The Chinese Government finds it difficult to tolerate such an action, and therefore we solemnly lodge a protest with you to the effect that any treaty secretly concluded between the Soviet Government and Mongolia will not be recognised by the Chinese Government.

"You are respectfully requested to transit this note to the Soviet Government at Moscow."

Chinese Dies From Hurts Received At Gambling Session

Because he disliked spending the night alone in the same room with his dead wife, a Chinese invited some friends in to gamble with him and pass the time until morning. As a result of his fear, another Chinese is dead today.

The "wake" was the background for a spirited gambling feast which developed into a free-for-all fight in which two of the visitors, it is alleged, fell upon Wong Zung-kwoh and inflicted injuries to his head. He was taken to the hospital, where the cuts were dressed, after which he was dismissed. The following day he fell in the street and died.

Two men, Yang Sz-tsoong and Nyi Dah-shing appeared in the Mired Court yesterday to answer charges. The case was remanded.

Dr. Kirkby-Gomes Tells Of Work In Military Hospital

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 6.—In a letter regarding the work done during the recent hostilities by the Fengtai Red Cross Hospital, Dr. Kirkby-Gomes who was in charge of it states that the difficulty in handling patients after the retreat of the Fengtien troops was due to the fact that the military doctors associated with the hospital before taking to there heels bundled up all the bandages and dressings, taking them with them. Some of his own surgical instruments, he states, also disappeared in their baggage.

The Hospital was located in the new building just completed for the railway school. The large car shed nearly opposite to that building, affording sufficient room to accommodate 600 to 700 wounded in an emergency, was used as an annex. From the day the fighting started the hospital was well equipped with surgical instruments, appliances, bandages and o[illegible] necessities for dealing with cases needing operative interference.

"As Surgeon-in-Chief," says Dr. Kirkby-Gomes, "I dealt with more than 200 cases of injury, both major and minor. My staff of dressers worked fearlessly and very loyally and worked very hard indeed both day and night. I had Mr. H. C. Faxon with me assisting all the time. He was there purely from humane reasons. He had had previous experience in ambulance and Red Cross work. He worked splendidly."

Soviet And Vatican Conclude Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, May 11.—The Tribuna learns from Genoa that the Vatican has concluded an agreement with M. Chicherin by which Russia accepts the Pontifical clauses regarding the liberty of religious conscience and the protection of Catholic missions in Russia. The Vatican withdrew the clause concerning the transference of church property in consequence of M. Chicherin's refusal to agree to it.

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—Telegrams from Genoa declare that the Russian reply is more uncompromising than was expected. It is believed that the delegates at the last moment were instructed by Moscow to insist on the recognition of the principle of nationalisation and on a loan of $1,000,000,000 and to propose the reference to the International Committee of experts on the subject of war debts, on which Russia is represented, of Article Seven of the Allied memorandum regarding the restoration of private property of foreigners in Russia.

London, May 19.—Replying to a telegram from the Congregational Union, Mr. Lloyd George says:

"The humanitarian forces of the world are closing their ranks in a new crusade against the tyranny of brute force. Genoa has sounded the tocsin of peace. We will not rest till we have won."

SHANGHAI BEATS HONGKONG GARRISON CRICKET XI BY ONE RUN AND FIVE WICKETS

Excellent Bowling By Cockburn For Shanghai And Davies For Hongkong And Splendid All Around Innings Of Hayward Features Of Day's Play

Shanghai succeeded in defeating the United Services team by 5 wickets, the match terminating yesterday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. The outstanding features of the last day's play was the sound and excellent bowling of both Davies and Cockburn, the former taking all of Shanghai's wickets in their second innings and the splendid all round innings of Hayward who scored 51 not out.

The second day's play began punctually at 11:30 a.m. The weather conditions being ideal, Clifford and Billings who were both not out on the previous day walked to the wickets amid encouraging applause. They started off well, scoring 7 in the first over, Billings soon reaching his 20 when he was bowled in the next over. Allison and Wilson followed on and both commenced hitting hard and high, both resulted in being caught eventually and Clifford remained undefeated with a well played 15.

Hongkong immediately followed on and played a very careful game till the tiffin interval, Lieut. Stewart being unlucky in again being bowled by Allison in his first over. Le Fleming retired with a well played 33, Purcell having in the meantime been beaten all the way by Cockburn who was bowling wonderfully, Major Bagnall and Captain Davies being still not out, the score being 68 for 4 wickets.

COCKBURN BOWLED WELL

Cockburn's bowling accounted for this rather poor total, he was irresistible. After tiffin Bagnall and Davies returned to the wickets and faced Wilson and Cockburn. Davies hit a boundary and a couple of twos and 80 was soon hoisted. These two batsmen make an invaluable stand which was the result of steady play, the bad ones only being hit hard. Cockburn now appeared to be tiring and 100 was put. Davies now fell to Leach at 116, the partnership having registered 56 runs. Commander Morrell was next man in; he scored a couple, then was c. and b. by Leach. Graham who was last man in was clean bowled by Cockburn leaving Beatty not out 3.

Shanghai then went in for the last time with 99 to get to win. After losing Cockburn and Ollerdessen fairly soon play became more determined. Hayward who was in very fine form was not to be denied and he scored consistently with strokes all round the wicket. Wainwright partnered him with a useful 28. He got out l. b. w. bowled Davies and was followed by Barett who was soon caught by Le Fleming off the same bowler. Davies was excellent and had Leach who was next man in caught by Morrell. Hayward also cut a chance into the same fielder's hands but was luckily missed. Clifford only was needed to help pass Hongkong's score and he was again not out, Hayward being not out 51, the best innings of the day.

BASEBALL SQUAD TAKES ITS FINAL PRACTICE TODAY FOR GAME TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Capt. Bills Calls For Every Man To Turn Out For A Fast Session Of Drilling; Three-Game Series With Nanking Looms As Probability For Memorial Day Holidays

Should tomorrow's baseball game with the nine from the Language School at Nanking prove to be a good exhibition of the great American pastime, it is more than likely that the visitors will be dated up for a two or three game series commencing Saturday, May 27 and continuing over to Memorial Day, Tuesday, the 30th.

The Nanking men will be in a position to take a short holiday from school at that time, and have already indicated a willingness to play such a series, depending upon the class of baseball played by the two teams tomorrow. If the game goes well, if it is found that the two nines are fairly evenly matched, and the local public would welcome a return series, it is almost certain that it will be arranged.

Captain Kingman, of the visiting team, himself an ex-Big Leaguer and twirler of considerable reputation believes that he has a good team together, and though he is not willing to prophecy the result of tomorrow's game, he feels sure that he and his men can make the afternoon an interesting one for the local players and fans alike. He writes that his squad has been taking real practice every day and that every man is in good playing shape.

It is quite likely that the Nanking team will start here tomorrow in much better playing condition than the local nine, for Shanghai men have not prepared for the game with the fast and serious team practice required for a hard game. The closing of the grounds on four days last week while the Spring Race meet was run broke into the drilling just when it was getting to the stage where team work should have started, and the following cool weather has kept many players out of uniform.

An infield practice was had yesterday however, with Woods at first, Hubbard at second, Bills at short and Holliday and Howland at third. Bruce held the big mitt during the workout, and he showed the few loyal fans on the sidelines as well as the fielders a burning peg to bases. If Bruce can stop them as well as he threw he has the catcher's berth cinched.

The whole squad turn out this evening at 5 o'clock for a long hard session of practice.

POST WAR-TIME TRAVEL IN CHINA HAS DRAWBACKS

First Through Train To Shanghai Many Hours Late

BY BERT L. KUHN

Staff Correspondent the China Press

War-time travel in China, and post war-time travel—if this may already be considered post war-time—has no particular physical hazards. But if the traveller is one whose nerves are at all inclined to be "jumpy" or who has any definite expectation of getting somewhere in any set period of time, he is more than likely to land at his destination—if he ever arrives—a legitimate subject for the nervous ward at some sanitorium.

I came down from Tientsin yesterday on the first through train that Shanghai has seen since the Tientsin-Pukow Railway was cut just below Machang. I was the only through passenger to attempt it. We arrived at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, a matter of only nine and one-half hours late. Everything considered, we made exceptionally good time. No one expected that we could possibly make Shanghai before the afternoon.

I planned my trip down Monday. The pledge made by General Wu Pei-fu, in his first public utterance on his arrival at Tientsin Saturday night, that normal train service would be resumed as quickly as possible had given me faith. There followed on Monday the announcement by the Tientsin-Pukow line that express passenger service would be resumed Tuesday, with the No. 1 train leaving at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. I was heartened. I bought my ticket.

And then Dame Rumor got in her dirty work. The train would go, said the official announcement. The train would not go said a message to the hotel, purporting to come from the railroad authorities. I accepted neither. I went to the station and waited, and waited and waited.

NO SIGN OF TRAIN

At 2 o'clock, there was no sign of a train. The traffic master at Tientsin East, however, assured me that the train would be run, and that it was then being made up at Tientsin Central. The status quo was maintained until four. Then the traffic master determined on a personal investigation. He hurried to Tientsin Central. The Tientsin-Pukow authorities complained that they had been unable to obtain a clear track. The track was cleared for them. And still no train came.

Two hours later a troop train blocked the track again. No news of No. 1. At 8:30, the derelict, a splendidly cheering sight, backed into Tientsin East. It carried two first class sleeping cars, a buffet car, a dining car, two second class cars, and a number of third class cars. I looked up and down the long shadowed platform. I was the only passenger in sight.

At 9 o'clock, seven hours behind schedule, we started from Tientsin East. But the track ahead of us had again been blocked by a troop train, and morning found us an additional four hours late.

I was still the sole passenger—a private train to myself. But at Tsinanfu, I found a companion, a weary-eyed young fellow, who he later told me, had waited on the platform from 10 o'clock of the preceding evening, unable to obtain any information as to whether the train would actually come or not. He had an incentive. He was going to Nanking to meet his fiancee. So he waited.

We figured that by hurrying we might be able to make Nanking in time to catch the 11 p.m. train for Shanghai. But at Pengpu, some Kiangsu general—no one was able to reduce his name to anything like intelligible syllables—saw fit to attach himself to our party. His two cars were hooked on in the rear, and from then on it was a continuous process of serenades and salutes at every station, with stops for the exchange of courtesies.

REACH PUKOW

We reached Pukow at 11:45 p.m. Word had been wired of our arrival. In the absence of any reply that the Shanghai train would be held, I was a bit more than doubtful. My doubts were almost confirmed when I found there was to be no ferry to the ferry station on the Nanking side.

A dollar to a ricsha boy and a 100-yard dash down the station platform, landed me aboard the Shanghai train a second before it pulled out. And I got here.

But my experiences are nothing as compared with those of travellers of the immediate pre-war era. A foreign newspaper correspondent at Peking has an endless series of reminiscences of the twelve days which he spent in getting from Shanghai to Peking. There were twenty first class passengers on the train, of whom eight were women. They included an English peer and an American of considerable means.

The train got through to Tsinanfu. There it halted. From Tsinanfu the party managed to get to Tsingtau, and there caught a Japanese coaster which dropped them at Chefoo. At Chefoo they hoped to get a boat for Tientsin. The article most approximate to a steamer at Chefoo at the time, however, was a small Russian tramp freighter. They approached the captain.

"We want to charter your boat to take us to Tientsin," they said.

"But I have never carried a passenger," he replied. "I have no accommodations, and you have women in your party."

THE MAGIC YEN

Objections were overruled when the American produced 2,000 yen. The ship's cook was sent scurrying for supplies. Blankets were provided from somewhere. The women were quartered in the wheelhouse. The men slept on deck, and His Lordship thought it "jolly good fun." And they finally made Tientsin and Peking.

Although it may be some time before China's rail service—even passenger service—is back on a normal basis, General Wu Pei-fu has expressed his determination to open the lines as quickly as possible, and everything is being done to expedite matters.

The severity of the tie-up, which began with the cutting of the Tientsin-Pukow and Peking-Hankow railways even before the outbreak of hostilities, has been especially felt in Peking and Tientsin, and during the days of the Fengtien retreat no effort was made to run even one train daily to Peking.

The last train to come through from Peking prior to the break in communications left there early last Thursday morning and arrived late that afternoon. It had passed through Fengtai before that place was occupied by Chihli soldiers. A train which left Tientsin Thursday morning failed to get through to Peking and was turned back.

Service on the Peking-Mukden line between Tientsin and Shanhaikuan is confined to troop trains, and even these are unable to get through, because of the bad tangle of trains and the cutting of the line in three or four places. Work crews have been sent out under the protection of troops of the Allied powers, and are repairing the line as quickly as possible.

Apart from the damage to rolling stock the railroads have suffered little through the war. Such breaks in the line as were made by the various troops were not of a serious character and were easily repaired.

COHEN DIVORCE SUIT IS UP IN BRITISH COURT

Hearing of a suit for divorce which has been filed in the British Supreme Court by Mrs. Grace Cohen against her husband Isaac Cohen was opened yesterday before Judge Peter Grain. This is the second action of its kind to be heard in the court.

Grounds for the action set forth in the petition are extreme cruelty and infidelity and yesterday's hearing was devoted to a statement of the plaintiff's case by her counsel, Mr. Langley Smith. Mr. M. B. Brown is appearing for the defendant.

The couple were married in Shanghai on June 24, 1917 and have two children.

Tea Dance Opens New Premises

A tea dance yesterday marked the official opening of the new premises of the Young Men's Hebrew Association at 10a Kiukiang Road. Over three hundred members and friends gathered together for the occasion and a couple of very pleasant hours were spent. This function was the first of a series of dances which the Committee hopes to arrange.

CHICAGO LABOR CHIEFS ARRESTED AFTER EXPLOSION

Police Head Takes Drastic Action Following Outrage

(China Press Service)

Chicago, May 10.—Labor disorders growing out of the wage award made by Judge K. M. Landis in a dispute between the Building Trades Union and contractors today resulted in the death of two policemen, the wounding of another, and the bombing of two buildings.

Immediately following the clash between the union men and the police Chief of Police Charles C. Fitzmorris ordered the arrest of every prominent labor leader in the city, and police raided the various labor headquarters.

"Big Tim" Murphy, belligerent leader of a dozen local unions, who is now out on bail pending an appeal from his conviction in a $400,000 mail robbery; Fred Mader, president of the Building Trades Union, and Cornelius ("Con") Shea, notorious head of the Teamsters Union who has figured in numerous labor disorders were among the first men arrested. They are considered the most powerful labor leaders in the state.

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, May 11.—One hundred and fifty labor leaders have been detained here by the police in connection, it is allegeded, with the murder of two patrolmen in a running fight following the bombing of two buildings

NINGPO MEN MAY JOIN STRIKE OF CABINET MAKERS

Furniture Factories Crippled By Walk-Out Of Men Who Want Wages Increased

Indications were seen yesterday that the Ningpo cabinet makers of Shanghai will join the strike that was started last Sunday when about five hundred cabinet makers, natives of Shanghai, quit work demanding increases of wages. The strike of the Shanghai men crippled the furniture making industry here, affecting a number of the larger foreign manufacturing plants, and if the Ningpo workers also walk out work in general in the furniture factories may be suspended.

The demand made by the Shanghai workers was a wage increase of from 76 cents to $1.01 a day. The question of joining the strike was discussed yesterday at a meeting of th Ningpo men but it was not announced that any definite action had been determined upon at his meeting.

FOUND MURDERED

(China Press Correspondence)

Kayang, May 1.—The body of an unknown man has been found on the Kwangtung-Kiangsi road. Three terrible knife wounds, two on the body and one on the head, indicate that he was murdered. Beside the body there was found a box containing a few articles of clothing and papers including photographs which indicated that the dead man was a workman in one of the Holland colonies. The presumption is that he was returning home from several years' labor abroad with his savings and was murdered for the money. Local officials are making efforts to discover the criminal and letters are being sent to the address found in the papers mentioned above in the hope that some clue may be discovered which will shed light on the mystery.

Canadian Premier Urges Caution In Immigration Law

(Reuter's Service)

Ottawa, May 10.—In the House of Commons in the course of the eight hours debate on the motion for the exclusion of Oriental aliens, mentioned earlier, the Premier, Mr. Mackenzie King strongly urged that the subject should be approached in a spirit of good will and in the light of their responsibility to the Empire and the world. They ought to help rather than retard the new movement of international goodwill.

He declared that the Japanese Government had carried out their agreement for restricting emigration to Canada wholly and honorably. The Premier deprecated the idea of imputing wrong motives to the government of a country which was an ally of Britain and which had rendered her vast service during the last few years.

He emphasised the difficulties which faced the Japanese Government, and expressed the opinion that an effective solution could only be achieved by the Governments working together. Mr. King laid stress on the inadvisability of taking any steps to interfere with the development of the growing trade with the Orient

Horticultural Society Meets

The annual general meeting of the Shanghai Horticultural Society was held at the Cathedral school room, at 5.15 p.m. yesterday, Mr. C. S. Speyer presiding, supported by Messrs. D. MacGregor and Mr. L. G. Westcott.

Mr. C. S. Speyer, after the notice convening the meeting had been read, expressed his regret that owing to indisposition the honorary treasurer, Mr. J. C. Bosustow, was unable to be present and turning to the Statement of Receipts and Payments for the year 1921, he commented on the fact that although the Society were only able to hold one show lastyear, the balance brought forward to the present year was $260.02 more than the previous year, the Society having at its command $1,099.48.

It was much to be regretted he said, that, owing to the exceptional weather conditions which prevailed during last Summer, it was found impossible to hold the annual Chrysanthemum Show, but efforts were being made to more than offset the disappointment caused to intending competitors and the public generally in the forthcoming show which will be held at the Town Hall on Friday, May 26.

"The thanks of the Society are due to the Shanghai Municipal Council for allowing us the grant for the whole year whereas we had only expected half the amount.

"Turning to the forthcoming show, there is every reason for a successful exhibition seeing that the Spring has been the mildest for many years and, barring a cold snap or excessive rain, flowers should be at their best at the date of the Show. The Committee are considering certain attractive features, particulars of which will be announced later, and it is to be hoped that members will not forget the competition for the National Sweet Pea Society's Medal, particulars governing which appear in the prize schedule now in the post.

"A further point to be remembered is that we want quantity more than quality and members are urged to betray no timidity in sending in their exhibits."

The adoption of the accounts was proposed by Mr. D. MacGregor, seconded by Mr. Westcott, and duly passed.

The Committee's thanks were expressed to Mr. E. S. Wilkinson, for auditing the accounts, and the proceedings terminated in a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman.

Lone Robber On Japanese Train

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, May 6.—While a passenger train bound for Uyeno was between Sunumonomiya and Utsunomiya shortly before 8 o'clock last night one of the passengers in a third-class carriage put out the lights and drawing a revolver demanded that the passengers hand over their money. There were half a dozen people in the carriage and one of them was relieved of ten yen. As the robber was proceeding towards the others the train unexpectedly came to a standstill before a signal station. This alarmed the robber who escaped through a window. On receipt of this news the police began a search for the robber. From the description given by the passengers it is believed that the robber is a man who was employed in passenger trains as light inspector and was discharged.

CHEFOO-WEIHSIEN ROAD HALTED BY LACK OF BRIDGES

One Car In Operation Over 15 Mile Route

(China Press Correspondence)

Laichowfu, Shantung, May 6.—Very little work has been done on the Chefoo-Weihsien motor road for some weeks. The money has long since been used up. The roadbed has been thrown up all the way to Chefoo, it is true, but the bridges east of Lungkow have not been built and only small sections have been rolled. A Tsinan firm has, however, obtained permission to use one car on the road and they are operating this car between Weihsien and Sawhoa, 50 li west of Laichowfu.

The trip to or from Sawhoa is made in about three hours at a cost of $25 each way. The car will carry five persons. Since the advance in animal hire if as many as three hire the car, it is as economical as shantza (litter) or cart aside from the saving of time. There is, however, little certainity as to when the car can be had, for it waits at either end of the run until there are enough passangers to make up the required $25 for a trip, and has no regular schedule. It is expected that a regular run will be instituted soon between Weihsien and Lungkow. At the latter place boats can be had for Chefoo every two or three days.

Except for the presence of more soldiers than usual in this part of the country and a rise in the price of silver dollars no one would suppose there was any political disturbance in China so far as this section is concerned. On leaving the train at Weihsien a few days ago we were told that many thousands of troops were passing Laichowfu and that some trouble had been experienced here on account of the troops, but on arriving here all was peaceful.

The people here had heard that Weihsien had been looted and one of the recent papers stated that Lungkow, the port near here, where the Japanese landed so many troops during the European war to strike Tsingtau by going overland, had been looted, but there is no foundation to either report. No disturbance has occurred this side of Tsinan, although many still are expecting trouble at Weihsien and other places along the Tsingtau-Tsinan Railway.

A few thousand troops have been landed at Lungkow and these are slowly making their way west to the railway. They came from Manchuria. We are told that several thousand from Manchuria have landed at Tsingtau and that those coming by Lungkow will join these at the railway.

Strike Inquiry Ends With Report Favoring Owners

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 11.—The report of Sir William Mackenzie, who conducted the official enquiry into the engineering dispute, holds that the management alone is in a position to judge the necessity for overtime and must be free to exercise its discretion up to the limit of thirty hours in four weeks. The management is also entitled to decide whether any proposed change in working conditions is urgent and must be enforced immediately. But subject thereto, the report declares the desirability of prior consultation.

Sir William Mackenzie makes further suggestions, but expresses the opinion that the matter is one in which no agreement can wholly take the place of mutual good sense, good will and appreciation of the others' difficulties.

Cotton Lockout May Be Called

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 11.—The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners has convoked a meeting to consider a general lockout, unless a settlement is reached in connection with the suspension of work in two Oldham mills.

The employers contend that the operatives are violating their agreements.

A. DE C. SOWERBY NOTED EXPLORER RETURNS TO S'HAI

The return to Shanghai is announced of Mr. Arthur de C. Sowerby, the explorer and naturalist, who is out in the Orient on behalf of the United States National Museum making a biological survey of South China.

For many years Mr. Sowerby has worked in North China for the same institution, making large collections of birds and animals, among which have been found many new species. He has now just returned from his second expedition into the faunistically rich province of Fukien, where he has made a fine collection of all kinds of interesting forms of animal life, especially of birds, reptiles, and fishes. In mammals he has also done very well, on his two trips securing some four hundred specimens representing 35 different species, of which some will doubtless prove to be new to science.

Mr. Sowerby says that Fukien is one of the richest parts of China from the naturalist's point of view, and though he has been forced to return to Shanghai for the time being he hopes to visit the province again in the Fall and make an extended trip that will take him the whole of the Winter, and which will carry him over the greater part of the province in his quest for zoological material.

First going South of Foochow, on the present trip, where he hunted tigers, but without success though securing many other interesting things, Mr. Sowerby next proceeded up the Min River, which is one of the most beautiful in China, to Yenpingfu. In the high mountains behind that city he camped for several weeks, making valuable collections. Here he secured some very rare reptiles and amphibians, birds of gorgeous plumage and a large series of bats and other mammals. He reports the flora of this district the most wonderful he has ever seen, the place being a perfect botanist's paradise, yet up to the present not visited by any professional botanist.

Lord Lee Lauds Anglo-U. S. Unity

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—Addressing the Colonial Institute on the Washington Conference, Lord Lee emphasised the closeness of the instinctive and inevitable co-operation between the American and British Empire Delegations. He dwelt at length and with regret on the Dominions' tardiness in enforcing the decision of the Imperial Conference by which the Dominions agreed to co-operate in the naval defense of the Empire.

Lord Lee declared that no word of comfort or offer of help came from the sister nations. On the contrary Britain confronted signs of even more drastic reductions of the slender naval forces, up to the present maintained, leaving Britain the burden of footing the whole bill.

Harbin Governor Asks Police Reform

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, May 8.—Proposals for the reformation of the police force in Harbin have been submitted by the Acting Civil Governor, Wang Hsu-han, to the Peking Government for consideration. It is proposed that there shall be organised training classes for police officers, where they can be taught the way to deal with foreign residents. The time considered necessary to do this is three months.

Training classes for the police privates, where they shall be taught their duties and also a little of the Russian language are planned. Training classes are to be held every day when studies in general culture shall be given, so that the police may deal the better with the common people. These who take these courses, it is added, shall be promoted to heads of police.

In order to make the police service as popular as possible it is suggested that the "wages of two policemen be used to pay one policeman, so that the best men may be attracted to the service." The police area is to be divided into sections as the areas in Peking are, and inspectors of the stations are to make the rounds to see that duties are well performed.

May 11, 1922

Spot bar silver was up ⅛d. and forward unchanged in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 70⅛ cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 444¾.

The only changes of importance in our official quotations here today were a rise in the Gold Dollar rate to 76, a drop in the Rupee rate to 258¼ and in the Franc rate to 830.

Our local market, throughout the morning, was steady to firm, business in Sterling being done at 3-6¼ for as far forward as July, and in Gold Dollars at 78¼ for May and 78 for June-July.

Late in the day, there were buyers rather than sellers at these quotations, the market, however, at that time, although not as strong as earlier in the day, being quite steady.

India bought a small amount of silver in London yesterday, and the market there is reported as closing steady.

The New York market is quoted as firm.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain said that the Foreign Office was approached in September last and had promised the support properly due to legitimate British enterprise. The Government, however, had no information with regard to the position of the negotiations.

How Wu Won The War

BY JOSEF W. HALL

WHILE the mass of narrative and fiction put out by war correspondents may be more interesting than the truth, there may nevertheless be some readers who would like to know the actual facts of Wu Pei-fu's victorious five day campaign.

When I reached Loyang the evening of April 24, General Wu told me that the war was already won. In his mind the issue was decided as soon as the first contingent of General Feng Yu-hsiang's Christian braves reached the Kwanyintang railhead after their remarkable forced march through the loess defiles from Shensi. The absolute confidence of the little General and his staff never varied, even when a Fengtien cavalry raid almost captured us.

"This will be a much more rapid debacle than the Anfu affair of two years ago," said Wu. "Three days of fighting will suffice to break to pieces the invading Hunghutzes." Later he admitted that he would have to extend the period two days. As I will explain, however, this was due to an uncountenanced move on the part of subordinate commanders. The original strategy as worked out by him at Loyang was executed without deviation.

Contrary to the reports of those who tried to explain the organisation of the Chihli army from behind enemy lines, the entire direction has been in the hands of General Wu Pei-fu himself. It has been absolutely a one-man command. Feng Yu-hsiang was left in charge of Loyang. General Wu's own 3rd Division he placed under Wang Chen-ping on the front between Paoting and Tientsin. The rabble of Tsao Kun and the Honan Tuchun Wu Pei-fu officered with men from his 3rd Division were placed under his personal command on the northern or Luliho sector. His instructions to Wang Chen-ping were to push gradually toward Tientsin and Machang. The Luliho contingent were ordered to push back Chang Tso-lin's outposts from the Liuli river to their fortified position on the ridge at Changhsientien. This ridge they were not to attempt to take; they were merely to hold their lines at its base until the flank attack of the Shensi soldiers, upon whom Wu depended to deliver the crushing stroke.

The push back from Luliho began on Saturday night. The Fengtien outposts as expected withdrew along the railway with only nominal resistance. In the flush of the pursuit one of Tsao Kun's commanders attempted a head-on attack against the ridge and suffered in consequence the chopping up of his regiment. When Wu Pei-fu heard the news he immediately left Paoting for the front; I with him. Since the attack had been begun he ordered its continuation, fearing an undesirable moral effect should it cease. In three days some twelve hundred casualties were suffered by these troops. Although several times contingents were routed their spirit was better than might have been expected in view of their make-up. Many of the battalions which had been carrying false names on the pay-roll were hastily brought to the proper number by the inclusion of green boys of the ages of twelve to sixteen. Wu constantly reinforced the battalions on the front by the addition of fresh arrivals from Kaifengfu. "When I get through with this scrap," he said, "I will keep these boys under my own command and make soldiers out of them."

On Tuesday night the Christian soldiers began arriving, each battalion complete as to machine-guns, artillery and cavalry. The moral effect of their arrival was tremendous. "They have never been beaten," said the men of every other unit on the front, "and they will put a quick finish to this deadlock." They are indeed hardy looking fellows and their discipline and spirit are wonderful. They are not so much as allowed to smoke cigarettes.

By Wednesday morning one complete brigade of these men had arrived. Wu Pei-fu personally took them out on the branch line which runs from Liangsiang to Toli at the foot of the Western hills and placed them a little past the extreme western flank of the enemy. That the Fengtienites should have left this branch line intact shows their ignorance of military tactics. Wu formed them in a hollow square and harangued them, promising them that they would have Peking in two days, and that hereafter they would receive their pay which Chang Tso-lin had been stealing for his Manchurian bandits. Then he told them to go to it.

By Wednesday midnight they were five miles behind and inside the left end of the enemy, who after an attempt to retaliate by a fierce cavalry charge on the Chihli left wing began a retreat from their now untenable position. They got their guns out in good shape and the retreat was orderly as far as Changsientien station where they expected to have some respite. Wu Pei-fu surprised them, however, by a sudden onslaught from his center and in the dawn of Thursday morning those who remained in the Changsintien railway yards went out in perfect confusion under the fire of the advancing Chihli troops. They abandoned several car loads of every conceivable type of military supply, and had no time to destroy the railway or even to strike their tents.

The Chihli pursuit continued hot across Lukochiao or the Marco Polo bridge, on to Fengtai, and down the Peking-Fengtien railway toward Tientsin, in which direction it still proceeds.

The little General whose facial characteristics are a scraggly yellow moustache, and half humorous, half-consternating crows-feet about cool brown eyes, stood on the top of the ridge watching pursued and pursuers stream over the flat valley of the Yungting River. I came up and shook hands with him. In response to my congratulations, he said: "Did I keep my promise to the Shensi troops?"

And that is the way it happened.

Color Of Soil

Some curious experiments as to the effect of the color of the soil were recently described in the French journal La Traction Moderne, and quoted in the Scientific American. These experiments were made in a vineyard. The surface of the soil was lightly covered with reinforced concrete, a suitable space being left vacant around each vine stock. One-third of this concreted surface was painted white, another third ochre red, and the remainder black; the results were very remarkable, since in those plots which had been painted red and black the vines were twice as vigorous as on the white plots. The reason for this is that the temperature of the ground is considerably higher in those areas having either a red or a black color, and this increase of temperature has an immediate effect upon the growth of the plants. These studies throw light on the superiority of the soil of certain territory, such as the black.

The Financing Of The War And The Aftermath

BY DR. R. ESTCOURT

SOURCES of money of the conduct of war have been divided into nine classes: 1; a war chest accumulated in advance; 2, debasing the coinage; 3, subsidies; 4, forced loans; 5, tribute; 6, taxes as the war goes on; 7, borrowed money; 8, issuing paper money, and 9, Government business industries. The number of these heads might be reduced by amalgamating processes closely analogous. At the same time there is the possibility that the future might add another in respect of some yet undiscovered device.

Debasing the coinage and issuing paper money have much the same effect. The difference is more psychological than concrete. The former is the ancient device; the latter its modern counterpart. It is easier to call in paper money than to rehabilitate the coinage, but they are equally adulterations of currency. Forced loans are a tax on capital to the extent that they are not intended to be repaid or are repaid with less profit than the owners of the money could have obtained in a free market. Subsidies are the converse of forced loans, sums of money, voluntarily advanced as a gift or loaned at a rate below that at which the subsidised State could obtain them. When the subsidies are a free gift they have the same economic effect as tribute, being merely voluntary instead of compulsory or contract tribute. In these considerations the important point is not so much the classification as having in mind exactly what the name implies. The concept is the thing, its name is merely an agreed sign appended so as to facilitate discussion of the concept. In every discussion it is of vital importance to know at the outset precisely what concepts we have in mind, otherwise two or more people will be using the same word with different ideas as to its significance, resulting in mental confusion.

In the history of warfare we shall find that the war chest accumulated in advance is the oldest form of provision. Yet if that war chest was not sufficiently guarded by adequately armed forces it became merely an incitement to war instead of a protection. The larger the war chest the greater the strength of the guard needed, but also the easier to enlist and arm a guard. Thus we find ourselves to some extent compassing a circle of cause and effect. Political history is little more than the story of the accumulation of actual and potential wealth and of the operations of its guard. The growth of the two coincide with the rise of the State possessing them. Then inevitably follows one of three consequences, although every State hitherto has imagined itself immune, much in accordance with the proverb that "all men think all men mortal but themselves." The three consequences are an ever-increasing confidence until the guard becomes dangerously insufficient, or inefficient, and slow decay sets in, a sudden raid and seizure of the chest by a well-prepared overlooked force, or a war with some State that had attained to almost equal wealth and efficiency. In ancient times this war chest was always known as the King's treasure, the King in those days being the military chief, the word itself being derived from one signifying the most knowing, the one most competent to lead. The term war chest is quite modern, but it signifies precisely the same as King's treasure, the evolution from the earlier term being easily traceable. When the King was solely responsible he combined in his office that of paymaster of the forces. In England, soon after the revolution of 1688 the King ceased to be Commander-in-Chief and his delegate also absorbed the office of paymaster and handled the whole of the military treasure. Thus we find the first holder of the combined offices, the Duke of Marlborough, maintaining his immense palace and retinue by means of a rake-off of two cents per diem in respect of each soldier, apparently considering this a suitable fee for management of the fund. That lucrative office was, however, soon taken in hand by a specially appointed State official at a fixed salary, whose accounts were duly audited. It is not recorded that any subsequent Commander-in-Chief enjoyed this kingly office.

It was a natural corollary of the establishment of the King's treasure that he should be owner of all precious metals mined or unmined. In virtue of this proprietorship he either leased the mines or worked them with slaves under royal officials. It has frequently been stated, with apparent truth, that every ounce of gold extracted from the earth has cost more to obtain than is exchange value. Gold mining as an individual industry would long ago have ceased except for the streaks of luck, for, although the average cost shows a loss on the enterprise, individual undertakings often show a large profit. Through being the owner of all mines, the monarch had to cover the average cost and therefore was almost compelled to get the work done by slave labor in order to make it remunerative. Occasionally higher-grade mines were leased to favorites who in their turn employed slave labor. In this way all coinage became the property of the monarch and one of the earliest devices for increasing the efficiency of the treasure in war time was by debasement of the coinage. This was, however, done secretly, so that the inflation of the currency should remain undetected as long as possible.

Subsidies were the next resort. Wealthy subjects of the monarch and wealthy friendly monarchs made voluntary offerings to aid in the expenses of the war. When these were considered to be not in accord with the ability of the subject, his faculty as we should now call it, forced loans were demanded and obtained, often under pressure of an unpleasant nature. From each tribe or State subdued by the King's armies tribute was demanded, which often consisted of a lump sum down followed by an annual payment. The alternative was slavery, the working out of the price in mining, while such treasure as existed in the conquered State was promptly looted. Taxes were the next resort. There is no need to expatiate on that term. Borrowing money is a process little over two centuries old. The system was invented by a native of Holland, to which country we are indebted for many financial devices. The process differs entirely from the old forced loans which were levied on selected individuals reputed to be wealthy, but lacking in gratitude to the State that secured their wealth. The modern system of borrowing arose about the same time as the transfer of the command of the army to a selected general. The State took over the whole liability, technical and financial. Thereafter loans were guaranteed by bonds issued by the State. The old forced loans were a personal matter between the subject and the monarch, concerning the repayment of which much tact had to be exercised, as a propitious opportunity for suggesting repayment frequently failed to present money is in one aspect an equivalent of debasement of the coinage itself. The issuing of paper is in one aspect an equivalent of debasement of the coinage and in another a form of bonding without an undertaking to pay interest. It is a State adaptation of the ancient private custom of issuing bills of exchange between merchants, the difference being that the State does not enter into business so as to have anything to exchange, but merely floats what are accommodation bills that have the effect of diluting the genuine supply of such bills and causing a fall in their purchasing power, otherwise an inflation of currency.

Obtaining money from the profits of Government industries or the leasing of the same for a premium is both very ancient and very modern. It automatically arose in the early communal forms of government and, when monarchies were superimposed on these organisations, the communal industries theoretically became the property of the newly created State. Profitable monopolies were thus created, but the tendency was to farm them out until they gradually became private property. The employment of large numbers of prisoners of war, State-owned slaves, made government industries necessary, but the modern acceptation is in its socialistic application, which is less than a century old. This latter stage is a corollary of conscription, which is also a form of State socialism. Both may be traced to the free cities of the Middle Ages, where specialised industries with closely guarded secrets were established, industries in which every inhabitant was trained to take a part for the increase of the general wealth of the community. Simultaneously every male was compelled to take part in the defense of the city, and every female was conscripted to carry on the necessary work within the walls and to provide for the needs of the fighting men.

The only modern instances of a State treasure chest have been supplied by the German and Russian Empires. The former held $425,000,000 at the beginning of the World War, the latter nearly double that sum, specially set aside for war purposes. A still greater treasure has since been accumulated in America, more than seven times the German hoard. Whether this may be regarded as a war chest is dependent on the course of events in the future. It is probably the largest treasure ever accumulated by any State in any age. Outside of Asia, other chests are practically negligible.

Having considered the sources and growth of war funds we are a long way on the road to a comprehension of their consequences. These consequences may take a variety of shapes according to whether the road is steadfastly retraced, whether there is only a partial attempt to return to a pre-war position, or whether the circumstances are such as to be supposed to justify a clean slate, as was the case with France when she abolished her monarchy in 1789, and with other States similarly situated in later days.

There are three after-war phenomena that present a perpetual puzzle to uninitiated—repayment of debt, levy of tribute and unemployment. The explanation of all three, however, is to be found in the same set of facts. Why these three matters present themselves in a way so contrary to what the war would have led the ordinary person to expect is that war and its incidents are commonly regarded as wholly national, whereas they are largely individual. We talk of the wealth of the nation when what we really refer to is the wealth of individual members of that nation. We speak of the "average" income just as if every one enjoyed such an income, whereas the income of the majority is below that amount. We speak of the debt liability and the taxation "per head" when the liability can be the affair of only the property owners and the taxation also mostly the same, for there is no faculty available for taxation where an individual is on the margin of subsistence, in other words, subsisting on an income based on the bare cost of living without any sum included for payment of taxes. In fixing a standard of living all fiscal experts regard as essential the inclusion of an allowance for the payment of taxes, if any demand for taxes is to be made from those limited to an income based on such standard. That large numbers must inevitably be so limited is an essential conditon of modern civilisation which would otherwise come to an end. The fact is that the debt is only theoretically owed by the State. As the collective embodiment of the people the State owes the money and its representatives are responsible for collecting the wherewithal for its discharge, but obviously, there must be a much larger number unable to contribute anything for this purpose than there are of those who must contribute far more than the "average amount" which statisticians so glibly set forth. Again, the debt is not owed to the whole people but only to certain individuals, and, if tribute is recovered, it will be payable to those individuals and not to the State generally, while the war chest in the last resort no longer belongs to the monarch or the State, but to certain individuals who have first claim on it. Theoretically these can legally demand that it be divided up among them in proportion to their claims, but the State continues to hold the chest and pay the owners interest on their claims, a process not far removed from the forced loan of ancient days, and acquiesced in from precisely the same motives. The ancient war chests, or King's treasure, were the sole property of the State collectively, without any individual claim upon them. Undoubtedly the monarch in charge of them occasionally used the funds for his private purposes and could not be questioned openly, but this form of embezzlement eventually brought retribution, only unfortunately those who reaped were often of a different generation from those who had sown the seeds of the trouble.

A natural assumption would be that after a war there would be a heavy demand for labor in consequence of the loss of so many that were previously employed. It had always been observed that a death in any undertaking made a vacancy for some one previously unemployed and it seemed reasonable to suppose that millions of deaths should make as many vacancies. Yet not only are there no vacancies created but there are more unemployed after than before a war. Curiously enough this is no new phenomenon. It was an every-day affair in the days of the Roman Empire, and to such history we must turn for enlightenment. In those days every war resulted in the importation of fresh hordes of slaves and in the home-bringing of immense quantities of tribute or loot. After the initial boost following victory prices fell rapidly, exactly as they are doing today. Those who were able to share in the tribute were able to buy more than they required, while slaves became so cheap that free labor had no opportunity for employment. It made no difference whether the slaves were employed at home or whether they were the workers of the conquered States engaged in supplying goods to discharge the indemnity levied on their States. The result in either case was that the State had to maintain its unemployed citizens out of appropriations from the tribute or on food grown in the subjected countries. Diversion and food, "bread and circuses," were essential to peace. It would have been quite useless to attempt to employ the citizens in manufacturing or agriculture, as there would have been no demand for the results at a remunerative price. Slave labor at home and abroad could provide all that was required by those possessed of property. Those who did not possess property and were not able to be employed might threaten trouble, but they quickly learned that this was useless, merely providing an opportunity for killing them off and so saving their maintenance.

After centuries of striving the remedy was found in the establishment of large numbers on vacant land where they had only opportunity for maintaining themselves. This device also had the result of distributing the crowds that had flocked to the cities. They were isolated and too busily employed in merely maintaining themselves from the soil to find time for getting together. The gradual cessation of foreign tribute made it necessary also to distribute the slaves whose liberation had been compassed by the Church. They, too, were spread over the land until the Middle Ages brought "the golden age of the common worker." It was a long, slow process and is not referred to here as a likely precedent to be followed, but as an indication of the forces that are working under other forms at the present moment as we strive to rehabilitate our shattered world. Because we call things by different names today we imagine that the facts have changed, whereas only their names have changed. What we have to do is to extract the concept from the tangle of words that has disguised its true significance. Then, with our modern appliances and greater knowledge, we easily should be able to deal with the difficulty. The need is to understand our problem; the solution is simple when once this is accomplished.

One of the strangest calculations has been fathered by The London Economist. Certain statisticians have included in war losses an assumed monetary value of the human lives sacrificed, assessing an English soldier at $3,000, a French soldier at $2,500, a German at $2,250, and so on, thus arriving at an added loss of nearly thirty billions. The basis of this calculation is the average earnings of a man during the productive years of his life multiplied by the actuarial expectation of life of the individual. But obviously if we have millions unemployed who are unable to earn anything or to make any effective demand for commodities, how could we be better off with several added millions in a similar position? How could they have any cash value? There is a modicum of truth at the bottom of this well of fallacies, but under existing conditions few estimates could be productive of greater absurdity.

Today we are in this difficulty: If we import such goods as cannot be produced in America they are of so exceptional a nature—mostly luxuries—that they could be bought only by those who demand such things, and the amount required to pay for them would be so relatively small that it would only imperceptibly increase employment for exchange purposes. If we import goods that can be produced at home, we should be throwing more out of employment. If we remain in the world market, our effective buyers will satisfy their wants from foreign sources. There is an enormous balance of trade in favor of America due to what is owed to individuals in America by individuals in other countries, quite apart from national indebtedness. If permitted, the owners of these debts would naturally prefer to be paid in kind rather than part with more funds in purchasing from their fellow citizens at home. Only by making it difficult or impossible for these imports to arrive can we prevent unemployed citizens from falling into the estate of the free laborers of ancient Rome and requiring to be fed and amused out of the proceeds of tribute or taxation. If the debts were owing to the whole of the people of America in equal proportions, the difficulty would be easily solved by a national holiday of several months' duration, during which the whole population would be maintained by the debtors residing in other countries. While we are waiting increasing numbers of individual creditors of the foreign nations are visiting the countries of their debtors and taking out in kind the amounts owing, to that extent reducing the indebtedness. This process has the same economic effect on America as if the products thus consumed were smuggled into America and consumed by the creditors. Sifted down, the process resolves itself into this: Certain individuals in America hold bills of exchange that by reason of tariffs and other conditions they are unable to convert. They take these bills to the country of their debtors, turn them into the currency of that country and use that currency for purchasing goods in the debtor's country, thus circumventing all inconveniences.

The immense amounts owing to the Government of the United States by other Governments not represent cash advanced, but war supplies manufactured or produced in America at war prices. A very large portion of such amounts would therefore be profits. By means of Liberty bonds and other devices for raising the necessary funds, our Government took over the liabilities of the foreign debtors to that extent and paid our own people in cash for these supplies, debting the several foreign countries with the amounts so paid on their behalf and at their request. Thus this whole nation has parted with its money to pay certain American citizens and corporations in full for the goods supplied at inflated war prices to the warring European Governments. The money has not left America, as the uninformed might imagine. It has merely changed hands. While the business was being transacted, employment was at its zenith and wages abnormally high. The abnormally high wages have been dissipated, incidentally enabling those with whom they were expended to reap fortunes, so that there now remain in America the profits on the original transactions and also on the sales to the recipients of high wages. The wasteful consumption by those who received the high wages is as much a dead loss to the world as the war materials destroyed in Europe. The actual loss is the raw materials and manufactured goods destroyed in Europe and the raw materials and manufactured goods wasterfully consumed in America. The prices of such articles today would be about one-third of what was charged for them and paid for them by the people of the U. S. against the note of hand of the various European Government who then desired to be supplied. Like a good many debtors to whom goods have been delivered at stipulated prices the European Governments, backed by their peoples, now regard what they have had as not worth the money charged. As between individuals this is a constant plea in defense of a claim for payment, and on it the courts sometimes reduce the amount claimed, but it happens here, as it often happens between individuals, that the actual claimant is a third party who bought the bills of exchange for full value in good money. Such a position legally preclude any dispute as to original values. There the case rests as regards the collection of the debts.

There are other aspects. An eminent professor of political economy stated "if the people were willing to continue the same sacrifices for a period of time equal to the duration of the war they could pay the debts in that time." This idea is fallacious. In the first place differences in valuations would make it necessary to continue the sacrifice for three times the period of the duration of the war, disregarding all questions of interest accruing during the extended period. The theoretical basis of the remark quoted is probably to be found in the idea that during a certain period the workers of one country supply the fighters of another with the materials necessary to their undertaking and that the process only has to be reversed at the conclusion of the war, the soldiers setting to work for a similar period to supply the materials now required by those who assisted them, a quid pro quo. It looks as simple as the case of the two ladies, one of whom worked to maintain her sister at college, and as soon as that one had obtained her degree she worked for a similar period to maintain her sister during a college career. This is an obviously equitable arrangement as between individuals, but it does not hold in national affairs. Nearly all our errors in this matter arise through regarding nations as units. One cannot receive tribute or subsidy or repayment of national debt in the same manner as such a transaction would occur between private individuals. If the money owing to America could be paid in gold, as it theoretically should be paid, the sum would only increase the amount in our war chest. Should the sums be paid in goods, such goods would not be distributed among those who worked to supply the original consignments out of which the debts arose; they would become the property of quite other individuals and would suffice to supply the demand for such goods during a longer period than that of the war, owing to the lower valuation. The result would be that there would be no work to be done in the lines filled by such goods. Much the same result would intermediately accrue from payment in gold, as gold could be obtained only by our debtors selling to other nations than this and so taking away our customers and enabling our manufacturers to buy of such nations for gold at prices below what the goods could be produced for in U. S. Such gold would then pass around the world and find its way back to our treasury. This is exactly what has been occurring. Asia has been taking gold from America in exchange for goods and goods from European countries in exchange for gold; then the European countries have passed the gold to us with added amounts since recovered from working their mines. Thus indirectly we have been buying more goods from our debtors instead of receiving the amounts owing. In this way our trade has been curtailed and our war chest filled to overflowing. It is much as if a man sold his house in order to increase his bank balance.

The more closely we study this matter the clearer becomes the difficulty of adjusting the financial outcome of modern war which arises solely from the fact that we think in terms of nations as entities whereas business is all transacted in terms of individual members of those nations. It thus happens that an arrangement that might be good if it affected all citizens in equal proportions fails of its object when the individual participation is taken into account.

Matters will eventually adjust themselves by the gradual recovery through taxation of that portion of the public debt represented by profits to contractors, modified in its incidence to some extent by the normal growth of business. This process will be accompanied by a slow readjustment of production to accord with new demands that by degrees replace those superseded, peace demands instead of war demands. It is a long road, but under the circumstances no other presents itself at the moment. If there be another, the possibility of which it would be silly to deny, the best way to discover it is by carefully considering all the incidents of the present position. The more accurately we comprehend the nature of the difficulties of the situation the greater will be the probability of stumbling on a better solution. We shall certainly get nowhere by shutting our eyes to the facts and blindly dashing hither and thither shouting about coming prosperity that after all cannot ultimately amount to anything unless it be scientifically based.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis, esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consist in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly.
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

SOCIAL SERVICE BOARD

There will be a meeting of the Social Service Board on Monday, May 15, at 5:15 p.m. at 9 Kiukiang Road. It is not, perhaps, generally realised that a great deal of the work carried on by this board is of a necessarily confidential character and therefore members hear rather less of its activities than those of other departments of the Association. The Hospitals Aid Department of the Social Service Board, however, cannot be too well known and every member with any time on her hands is cordially invited to co-operate in their excellent work. During the past week 1,260 gauze pads, 6 pillow cases and 7 sheets have been sent to the Hangchow hospital and over 200 bandages to the Women's Hospital at Changteh. In addition to the large quantity of gauze presented to the Department last week, Mrs. Prentice has now very generously given a Singer's Sewing Machine to the committee.

GARDENING SECTION

An exceedingly practical and useful lecture for this section has been arranged for today, to take place, if fine, in Mrs. Geoffrey Wright's garden at 10 Kinnear Road and if wet, under cover at Jessfield Park at the Ferry entrance. The subject of the lecture will be "Vegetable Growing" if fine and "Seed Sowing," if wet. Mr. Etterley will be the lecturer. Members of this section are reminded that while a certain number are very keen on learning all they can by means of the very valuable lectures that have been arranged by experts for their benefit the general attendance has latterly been somewhat discouraging and it is hardly to be expected that the valuable time spent in their preparation will continue to be at the disposal of the section if the support of the latter is lacking.

ART SECTION

The Art Section has certainly scored a heavy success with the delightful exhibition of pictures that has been held for the past fortnight or more at Headquarters. Owing to repeated requests to keep it open a little longer the pictures are only now about to be moved and those which have been purchased sent to their owners. Thus encouraged, the committee have decided to hold a Sketch Club Exhibition in the early Autumn and all members of the section wishing to join in this are asked to do one or more sketches for the purpose during the summer. The subjects selected for illustration are "Clouds" and "At play," thus giving both landscape as well as figure painters their opportunity. These sketches may be carried out in any medium, oils, water-colors, pencil etc.

The pictures by Mr. Juel Madsen, which formed so interesting a feature of the recent exhibition, have evidently made considerable impression on local artists, and we understand that the Art Section intend buying his drawing of "Children in Constantinople" with the object of hanging it permanently at Headquarters. Members interested are asked to subscribe one dollar or more towards this—Mr. Madsen having agreed to sell the picture for the moderate sum of $50.00. The following committee was elected by the general meeting held on the 27th ultimo: chairman, Mrs. Frost; vice-chairman, Mrs. Gull; hon. treasurer, Mrs. H. H. Williams; hon. secretary, Mrs. Edwin Wood; members, Mrs. Michael, Mrs. R. J. Roberts and Miss Balean.

NEEDLECRAFT SECTION

A capital program has been issued by this enterprising section and "progress" is evidently the motto. Dates of fixtures carry on until a year hence and among the interests concerned are lace making, bead-work and stencilling. Members of the section are busily engaged in preparations for their sale of work and at home on May 22, when hats, untrimmed and trimmed, will form a real attraction. A few of these were sold at the last weekly meeting but there are a large number in reserve for the sale and they are said to be really charming as well as moderate in price.

DRAMATIC SECTION

If members of the B.W.A. and their friends have not already booked seats for the entertainment that the Dramatic Section is giving at the Country Club on Tuesday, May 16, at 9:30 p.m. they are advised to do so at the earliest opportunity as the number remaining is limited. As has already been stated, tickets can be obtained from Moutrie's, the Country Club and from the Secretary of the B.W.A. at 9 Kiukiang Road. Price, including a light supper, $2.00. The program promises to be most entertaining and comprises much talent as shown by the following:

Recitation — Mrs. Michael
Song — Mr. Biggs
Recitation — Miss Richardson
Song — Mrs. Mills

U. S. BUSINESS IN STEADY UPWARD TREND, REPORT

Thirty Thousand Manufacturers Make Good Reports

(China Press Service)

New York, May 10.—President J. E. Edgerton said that the reports from 30,000 manufacturers showed that business conditions indicate a "stable, sane, and definite and continuing advance of business on the up-grade in practically all basic industries."

(China Press Service)

Birmingham, Ala., May 10.—Governor Harling of the Federal Reserve Board, addressing the Southern Wholesale Drygoods Association urged United States merchants to put on steam to prepare to handle tomorrow's business. He said that conditions indicate an improvement in the United States and abroad. He added:

"If business is dull, send out your traveling salesmen, and use printers ink and advertise liberally but judiciously. The business you create will become apparent when the decrease in unemployment adds to the purchasing power of your customers."

BOOKMAKER TO RETURN CHECK OF BANKRUPT

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—The Court of Appeal has reversed the decision of Justice Astbury that the Trustee in Bankruptcy could not recover from a Brighton bookmaker £955 paid by cheque by a bankrupt to meet his betting losses.

The Master of the Rolls said there was nothing discreditable or dishonorable, as the law stood, in the Trustee collecting the debt for distribution among the creditors. He entered judgment for the Trustee. Lord Justices Sir Thomas Warrington and Sir Robert Younger concurred.

Note—The action was one of five by the Trustees who desired it to be regarded as a test case.

Mr. Justice Astbury in delivering his decision said that an ordinary litigant was entitled to judgment under the House of Lords' decision in the case of "Sutter versus Briggs," but that the plaintiff, as a court officer, was subject to the discretion of the Courts. If would, he said, be disastrous to the administration of justice if the courts allowed their officers to transgress the elementary principles of fair and honest dealing. There was no provision in the Bankruptcy Act, he said, to entitle Trustees to rob bookmakers.

U. S. PETROLEUM PRODUCTION FOR 1921 HIGHEST YET

Output Is 469,639,000 Barrels, Valued At 753,000,000 Dollars

(Chung Mei Service)

Washington, April 4.—Production of petroleum in the United States in 1921, as indicated by the quantity reported from producing properties to the United States Geological Survey, reached the highest figure of any one year, amounting to 469,639,000 barrels with an estimated value at the wells of $753,000,000.

This represents an increase of 26,237,000 barrels over the production of 1920 and is more than double the quantity produced in the United States in 1912. These figures, it is said, will be increased somewhat when figures for the quantity of petroleum consumed for fuel on the leases and by the net change in storage held on producing properties at the beginning and end of the year become available.

World's production figures for 1921 are not yyet known but preliminary estimates indicate a total not far from 750 million barrels as compared with 695 million barrels produced in 1920.

Imports of crude oil into the United States during 1921 amounted to 125,307,000 barrels, as compared with 106,175,000 barrels in 1920 and with 52,822,000 barrels in 1919, these figures corresponding, respectively, with 27.24, and 14 percent of the domestic production of the past three years. Exports of crude oil during 1921 amounted to 8,940,000 barrels and during 1920 to 8,757,000 barrels.

The year opened with record prices which held for several months, in spite of rapidly increasing stocks. Shortly after the beginning of the year, however, prices began to fall, and low prices held until the rate of rapidly increasing stocks eased off somewhat in September and October. Low prices were reflected in a marked curtailment of field activity, and 15,012 producing oil wells are reported to have been completed during 1921, as contrasted with 24,222 in 1920.

Chinese Editor Says People Are Judges Of Events

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, May 8.—"The people who have the accurate information about the outcome of events in China," says an editorial writer in the Shun Tien Shih Pao, "are the merchants and lower grade military officers, the soldiers, and the people of the lower and middle classes generally. In all of the events that have happened during the past ten years, it has been they, and not the politicians who have had the accurate line on what was going to be the outcome.

"Since the revolution of 1911 it has always been among the middle class that a newspaper man has been able to collect the true news of what is going to happen, and if politicians would only follow the people's lead they would be much better off. When the revolution started, the gossip of the middle class was to the effect that the Chin Dynasty would soon come to an end. This came about. When the second revolution took place they again prophesied that it would not succeed, but that it would be put down by Yuan Shih-kai. And this happened. Then when Yuan Shih-kai tried to become emperor and when Chang Hsun tried to restore the Manchus failure was again predicted, and with truth. And now in this case, of the war between Fengtien and Chihli as in the Chihli-Anfu trouble, the people's opinion has been vindicated.

"It is because 'in the opinion of the writer,' the people have no relation with any political party and their judgment is not biassed by party inclinations. And in addition, they are in close contact with the lower military officials and the soldiers who are so often their relatives. If politicians could only follow the opinion of the people more carefully they would be much better off."
